Here is how you can choose the correct size for your bracelet in a few simple steps.

1. Print out this sheet, but make sure there is no scaling in the print dialogue window. If there is, deselect "adapt to print area". This page must be printed to 100% scale. Make sure this has happened by measuring the print-out.

The measurements indicated should correspond to those of your print-out.

2. Cut the bracelets out with scissors, carefully following the outlines.

3. Tape the paper bracelet around your wrist, closing it with a piece of tape. The two rectangles should just touch, not overlap. The rectangles, when touching, represent the open space between the ends of the bracelet. Do this with all paper models.

The right size for you is the one that has between 5 and 10 mm space between the paper and your wrist.
